NOLS was founded in 1965 by Paul Petzoldt, a legendary mountaineer and outdoor educator. Petzoldt believed that wilderness experiences could be transformative, teaching students not only how to survive in the wild but also how to live more fulfilling and meaningful lives.

Today, NOLS offers a wide range of courses, from beginner-friendly backpacking trips to advanced mountaineering expeditions. Courses are available in all corners of the globe, from the remote wilderness of Alaska to the bustling streets of New York City.

NOLS courses are designed to challenge students both physically and mentally. Students learn how to navigate in the wilderness, build shelters, start fires, and prepare food. They also learn how to work as a team, solve problems, and make decisions under pressure.

In addition to its traditional courses, NOLS also offers a variety of specialized programs, such as:

- Wilderness medicine
- Outdoor leadership
- Environmental education
- Youth programs

NOLS graduates go on to work in a variety of fields, including outdoor recreation, education, and conservation. Many NOLS alumni also become leaders in their communities, inspiring others to get involved in the outdoors and protect the environment.

If you are looking for an unforgettable outdoor experience that will change your life, NOLS is the perfect place for you. With its experienced instructors, challenging courses, and stunning locations, NOLS will help you discover your potential and become a more capable and confident outdoor enthusiast.

NOLS Curriculum

The NOLS curriculum is designed to teach students the essential skills and knowledge they need to safely and responsibly enjoy the outdoors.

Courses are typically divided into three phases:

1. Pre-course: Students learn the basics of outdoor living, such as how to pack a backpack, purify water, and build a shelter. They also develop a fitness plan to prepare for their upcoming trip.
2. Field course: Students put their skills to the test on a wilderness expedition. They learn how to navigate in the wilderness, cook over a campfire, and manage risk. They also have the opportunity to practice their leadership skills and work as a team.
3. Post-course: Students debrief their experience and reflect on what they learned. They also develop a plan for how they will continue to use their outdoor skills and knowledge in the future.

NOLS courses are offered at a variety of levels, from beginner to advanced. Courses are also available in a variety of disciplines, such as backpacking, kayaking, mountaineering, and rock climbing.

NOLS Impact

NOLS has had a profound impact on the outdoor industry. The school's graduates have gone on to become leaders in outdoor recreation, education, and conservation. NOLS has also helped to develop industry standards for outdoor safety and education.

In addition to its impact on the outdoor industry, NOLS has also had a positive impact on the environment. The school's graduates are passionate about protecting the natural world and many have gone on to work in conservation fields.

NOLS is a truly unique organization that has made a significant contribution to the outdoor community. The school's graduates are a testament to the power of outdoor education to transform lives and inspire people to make a difference in the world.
